The Corona was on her first trip of the season, and had but recently come out of the dry dock, where she received repairs amounting to mearly $12,000. She was built at Wheeling W. Va., by Sweeny Bros., of that city, seven years ago, and had a carrying capacity of 2,700 bales of cotton. At the time of the accident she was valued at $20,000.

STATEMENTS OF SURVIVORS.

Mrs. F. W. Robertson says that when the Corona arrived opposite False river landing, about sixteen miles below Bayou Sara, one of her boilers exploded, tearing the boat to pieces, when she sank in deep water in a few seconds. Mrs. Robertson says she was wedged in the ladies' cabin with some of the debris laying across her lower limbs, but was sud denly released and found herself floating is the river. She sank twice but luckily was picked up and escaped with only a few bruises. Mr. Rollings, pilot of the Corona,

"I was asleep in the texas at the time of the explosion." He does not know how the ex-plosion occurred. He was awakened by the noise it made; he was painfully burned on both hands.

Hon. L. F. Mason, secretary of state, who was a passenger on the Corona, states that he was in the cabin talking to Mrs. Robertson at about 10 o'clock this morning when the explosion occurred. He escaped with life preservers and assisted in saving Mrs. Robertson and another lady, There was very little time for preparation for escape, as the boat went down-like lead a few seconds after the explosion. As the steamer City of St. Louis came down she was hailed and took on board all the massengers and crew who were not lost all the passengers and crew who were not lost

No one seems to be able to give any explana-tion as to the cause of the sudden disaster. THE BOTTOM WAS BLOWN OUT.

The Picayune's Baton Rouge special says: Captain T. C. Sweeney, one of the owners of the line who assumed command on the death of Captain Blanks, says the explosion was not owing to too high pressure of steam. He had just had occasion to examine the gauge and is positive there was not a pressure of more than 135 pounds.

The boat had a moderate cargo. She was in mid-stream just below the landing at Arbroth, and had just whistled to pass the City of St. Louis, fortunately coming down at time. The explosion had a down-d tendency and blew out the bottom of the boat, causing her to sink immediately. The cabin was torn in two, the rear portion floating down the river and bearing a out the flames, which began to burn at several places. He says the boat would undoubtedly have burned had she not gone down immediately. None of the books, papers or other valuables were saved.

NOBLE WORK OF A CREW.

The City of St. Louis, which was about five ndred yards above, at once put out her boats and their crew did noble work in saving lives. The Anchor liner stayed there several hours The Anchor liner stayed there several hours rendering all the assistance possible and taking on board the rescued passengers and crew. When nothing more could be done she came to Baton Rouge, where physicians were summoned and everything possible done for the injured. The only dead body recovered was that of Fred Overman, the second barkeeper. The remains were put off at the wharf office, where they were viewed by Coroner Jones. It has not yet been determined whether they will be interred here or sent on to New Orleans. Three or four of the injured remained on the City of St. Louis and were carried to New

The South American Delegation Start on

WASHINGTON, October 3 .- The delegates to the international American congress were astir at an early hour this morning to prepare for their long trip arranged for them by the department of state. They awoke to enjoy one of the most charming of Washington's autumnal mornings. The sky was clear and the sun shone with just enough intensity to temper the cool breezes that prevailed. The delegates partook of an early breakfast and then made their way to the Pennsylvania railroad station, where for three-quarters of an hour before the scheduled time for the starting of the train an unusual stir and activity was noticeable. The vestibule train was early an object of admiration by a great crowd of sight-

There was some laughter caused by the expeditiousness with which the bishops had acted. Action on all the other resolutions having been taken, the twelfth resolution came up for consideration. Dr. Huntington said that, personally, he was opposed to the resolution, and therefore did not wish to move its adoption. He suggested that Rev. Dr. Egar, of central New York, a member of the committee who was in favor of it, make the motion. This 'Dr. Egar did. He also spoke in favor of the resolution, which was:

essee's Confederate Contingent has Holiday-Crowds at Richland Park. NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 3.-[Special.]-The old confederate was the man in town today. The streets and sidewalks were thronge day. The streets and sidewalks were thronged with the good people who knew and loved him, and cheered him as he passed by. In groups of two or three, or a dozen or single, the badge on his lapel was the cynosure of all eyes, and, though the hair was grey and oftentimes the walk feeble, the heart that was light shone through the eyes that looked unflinchingly at you, and there was a general quickening when the stirring strains of Dixia shone through the eyes that looked unflinchingly at you, and there was a general quickening when the stirring strains of Dixie brought back the days that tried men's souls, and all the hardships endured in the four years of battle. The trains this morning were crowded with incoming veteruns and ladies accompanying them. The ladies proceeded to the parlor of the Maxwell and Duncan, where they were received by the committees appointed for the purpose. The veterans marched to the merchants' exchange, where the members of the Frank Cheatham bivouac acted as hosts. They were a magnificent looking body of men. Strong in physique and resolute in expression, they were a credit to the manhood of the state. Here and there could be seen one who carried a crutch, or wore an enapty sleeve. At 9:45 the procession formed at the merchants' exchange and marched through the principal streets to the depot. The windows of all the houses on the line of march were filled with spectators. No action upon these messages was necessary.

The total attendance was not less than five thousand, of whom half were ladies. The speakers' stand was tastefully decorated with flowers and the flags of bivouacs.

General W. H. Jackson delivered the address of welcome, and Captain T. F. Perkins, president of the state association, responded, after which prayer was offered, and Captain Ed Baxter was introduced by Rev. D. C. Kelley, the fighting parson, as the orator of the day. Captain Baxter's speech was able and appreciated, and he was cheered to the echo, frequently bringing out the old rebel yell. A great dinner was then served. A special train then carried the members of the state association to Belle Meade, where they spent an hour, returning to the city in time for the evening trains. The second annual reunion was a great success. Many will stay over and visit the Hermitage tomorrow. The only flags carried in to-day's procession were two confederate battle flags. asking that Oregon be admitted as a diocese, and the petition was referred to the committee on new dioceses. Deputies from Oregon were admitted to sittings in the house, pending the report on their petition.

Rev. Mr. Davies, of Pennsylvania, presented a report on liturgical revision from the committee on that subject, appointed by the last general convention, and asked that its report should be made the order of the day this day week, at 12 o'clock.

Pending a decision on this, a deputation from the provincial synod of Canada was received by the house. The deputation was presented by Rev. Dr. Harwood, of Connecticut, and consisted of Right Reverend Dr. Sullivan, lord bishop of Algonn; Right Reverend Dr. Courtney, of Nova Scotia; the Rev. Dean, of Huron; Reverend Archdeacon of Montreal and Judge McDonald.

Crawford was at Miller's house, and both were drinking freely. Soon they began to quarrel. William Boyce and Perry Cummings, who were also there, became alarmed and left. They had only gone a short distance when they heard a gun fire. Then they returned to the house and found Miller lying upon the floor with blood freely flowing from his head. He had been fatally wounded, having been shot in the head with a mixture of shot and slugs from a musket. He did not live long. Crawford has been arrested and placed in jail. MACON, Ga., October 3.—[Special.]—The people of Thomaston are becoming interested in and excited over the proposed Macon and Birmingham railroad, just like the citizens of Greenville, but instead of going before the legislature with their grievances they appeal to the board of trade of Macon for assistance. About thirty one years ago Mr. E. N. Gower, of Gainesville, was engaged in manufacturing carriages at Greenville, S. C. He then built for Judge Martin, father-in-law of Hon. W. P. During the war it was consigned to the carriage house, where it remained unused for the road eyer since. The workmanship on this The workmanship on this carriage was so good, however, that, in splits of the fact that it was converted into a playhouse for children and was a favorite roosting place for poultry, the boly and running gear remained about as good and strong as ever. Colonel Price, seeing that the shape and style of this venerable vehicle had again come in fashion, sent it to Mr. G. W Walker, of Gainesville, for repair. Mr. Walker re-trimmed and re-painted it in elegant style, and a neater and more fashionable carriage has not been seen on the streets in many a day. For an inconsiderable amount expended on it the colonel has as handsome and fashionable a turnout as there is in northeast Georgia. Thus it is that the "whirligig" of time brings around a change in the carriages as well as in polities and other thin gs.

Some of the best cotton farming this year was done by Mr. W. E. Lloyd, of Concord. He has an acre of laud from which he has gathared a bale of cotton and will get another bale if not more. The cost of making this cotton will be seen from the following itemized statement of expenses:

Cultivating...
Pleking...
Ginning...

22 10 The production of $100 worth of cotton at a total cost of $22.10 is exceptionally fine farming. What Mr. Lloyd has done may be accomplished by others, and when they do, the secret of farming will have been brought out and prosperity will follow in the wake of poverty.

Captain Y. G. Rust planted out two English walnut trees in his yard in Albany, seven years ago, more for ornament than experiment. The two trees thrived as a green tree by a river of water, and are now bearing. Last year they bore only two nuts, but this season each has several pounds of delicious nuts, and they are as perfect in all respects as any ever grown in any latitude. In California, land that will grow the English walnut is worth $1,000 an acre, and is held in great request.
Our lands are selling from $4 to $15 per acre. There is some good and sufficient reason why this discrepeancy should exist. It is certainly not in the conditions of climate and soil, but must be looked for in the methods that obtain. In southwest Georgia they have never looked beyond the end of a year in plans and preparations, and instead of planting perennials, they have devoted attention almost exclusively to the cultivation of annuals. This habit has crystalized into a general custom, and the same weary round year after year, in tread mill fashion, accounts for the slow progress. Thanks to the spirit of enter-prise of a few, there are some conspicous depart-ures from the old methods, and orchards of fruit and nut-bearing trees are being planted.

elections, says:

But it is the politician's peculiar work to find an issue to divide the people. Until this is done, work lags; but the issue must be found, and if there is not one in existence, it must be manufactured. The people all over Georgia know just what we mean; or, if they do not, they are totally ignorant of the ways of the average politician.

But what we would like to impress upon the minds of the good, honest voters of the state, is the necessity for discountenancing the present commercial methods of the average officer-seekers to the end, that an election may, in fact, represent the will of the people, rather than the size of the pocket book of the successful candidate.

FIGHTING THE INDIANS. HOW COLONEL DUGGER LED HIS MEN TO VICTORY.

The Colonel Surrounds Three Indians and Marches Them Into Camp—The Wonder ful Strategy Displayed.

BLUE RIDGE, Ga., October 3.—[Special.]—
The Post gives this week the wonderful adventures of Ben Dugger with the Indians.
While Colonel Dugger was drilling his men, many cavilled at him for no joining General Scott at once and go to fighting. But Dugger said the pre-requisites to success in war is to thoroughly discipline the men before carrying them on the field. He accordingly drilled his men daily until they were perfect in the manmen daily until they were perfect in the man-ual, and understood most of the field move-ments. While Colonel Dugger was making preparations to join General Scott, Tennessee was thrown into great excitement by the news mountains from North Carolina, and were killing and laying waste everything before them, and the people were flying for life.

The governor at once sent orders to Colonel Dugger to CHECK THE INDIANS in their destructive work, and beat them back into the mountains; but before the orders reached him he was marching to meet the Indians. He marched on all day without seeing any He marched on all day without seeing any Indians, but late in the evening he met many, who had abandoned their homes, and were flying to save their lives. The people told him the Indians were not many miles away and there were between eight hundred and a thousand of them. Dugger had only seventy-five men with him, and every one he met, advised him not to advance any farther until he was reinforced, as he was simply marching was reinforced, as he was simply marching into the jaws of death to march against so many Indians with only seventy-five men. But Dugger said he had seventy-five brave and well disciplined men, and he was not and well disciplined men, and he was not afraid to meet the whole Ceerokee nation.

So Colone. Dugger continued his march until the dark pall of sable night mantled the earth, when he halted and struck camps. He placed sentinels and was soon quietly reposing in the arms of balmy sleep.

The next morning, by the time the first rays of the sun kissed the mountain tops,

DUGGER WAS OUT ALONE

was walking along leisurely imagining how the Indians would scatter when they saw him and Indians would scatter when they saw him and his men, when suddenly three savage Indian warriors sprang into the road behind him. They, brandishing their tomahawks and yelling like madmen, made for Dugger. Dugger saw there were too many of them for him, and he bounded away through the woods, across rocks, stumps, and logs like a wild deer, and the Indians followed with the fleetness of a greyhound. He soon discovered that the Indians were gaining on him, and there was noltime for him tostop to think how to save himself. In the meantime he came to there was nottime for him tosto to think how to save himself. In the meantime he came to a deep and wide ravine. The Indians were upon his heels, and gave one wild yell, for they knew they had him. But Dugger with incredible agility sprang into the air, and cleared the ravine by several feet. The Indians thought they could accomplish the same feat, but every one struck against the bank, which stunned him, and he fell to the bottom of the ravine. Dugger saw that this was his chance, and turning leaped upon them like a ferocious lion. In less time than it takes to tell it they were disarmed, and Dugger, with his gun point. were disarmed, and Dugger, with his gun point-blank on them, ordered them to get up and "shuffle." Everything being arranged to renew the march, Colonel/Dugger threw out a skirmish line and marched very slowly. He had not proceeded far until he discovered the mischievous work of the Indians. Duggar halted, and by sending out scouts ascertained that the Indians were retreating before him. So he made a force march to overtake the Indians and force them to fight. He marched on till late in the evening without seeing an Indian, and had almost given up hopes of overtaking them and of the opportunity of distinguishing himself as a warrior, but was consoling himself with the thought that just the name of himself and his men was enough to

The Indians from every direction made a desperate charge upon Dugger and his men;
but Dugger, with the greatest celerity, had his men to form a phalanx and thus repulsed the Indians, leaving the ground literally covered with their dead bodies. The Indians only gave back a short distance, and commenced firing again. Dugger ordered his men to lie down, and to make sure and the Indians were hid all around him in it, and he knew he could not cut through them without loss. The grass was high and dry, and Dugger had half of his men to form a circle with a radius of fifty feet, and put the others to clearing away the grass. As soon as they had a place cleared away large enough for the men to stand on he had the grass fired.

The fire drove the Indians out of the grass, and Dugger was thus enabled to gain the heights, where he took an advantageous position. The Indians soon discovered Dugger's stratagem, and surrounded him again. They charged him several times to drive him from his strong position, but only to be repulsed with heavy loss. The fight continued till late in the evening, when about a hundred and fifty Indians retreated, leaving near six hundred dead on the field. So Dugger gained the day, but was

GRADY IN EATONTON.

He Makes a Grand Extempore Speech Before a Large Crowd. EATONTON, Ga., October 3 .- [Special.]-The fair here has been a very great success. Put-nam has put her best foot forward, as she al-ways does, and the result is a magnificent tribite, not only to the enterprise of her citizens but to the character and extent of her reources. There were quite twenty-five hundred people on the ground when Mr. Grady arrived, and he was most enthusiastically received. His speech was, for the most part, an impromptu one, but he caught his audience from the first, and held it spell-bound from first to last. Mr. Grady seemed to realize that he was speaking to an audience of the most refined and cultivated people to be found in Georgia, and he rose to the occasion, so to speak. He branched out on new lines, and seemed to gather inspiration from the great crowd that gathered around him.

The races today were fine, some of the best Kentucky trotters being on the track. To-morrow will be the most important in racing Athense, Ga., October 3.—[Special.]—Athens socially is in a whirl, and entertainments and dances follow each other rapidly. The young ladies are nearly all back home; college is open and the boys are here, and the season of mirth and jollity has re-opened.

One of the pleasantest entertainments of the year was given Tnesday evening at the residence of Dr. H. N. Harris, on Milledge avenue, the occasion being the birthday of Miss Pauline Harris, his charming young daughter.

During the evening dancing was indulged in, and delicious refreshments served. Among those present were Misses Cornelia Jackson, of Atlanta, Susie Lucas, Jennie Smith, Mary Harris Brumby and Meta Charbonnier; Messrs. W. D., Ellis, Jr., Guy Hamilton, N. L. Poullein, Joe Lucas and W. A. Hemphill, Jr.

At the beautiful home of Professor L. H. Charbonnier, last evening, there was given an entertainment complimentry to Miss Cornelia Jackson, of Atlanta. About twenty couples were invited, and the scene of enjoyment and pleasure was one not soon to be forggotten.

The University is Closed Against You-The Augusta Canal Causes Trouble-The Railroad Tax Bill Perfected. Yesterday's session of the senate was an animated one.

There were three discussions.

First, a nice parliamentary point connected with Mr. Glenn's railroad tax bill, resulted in favor of the bill by a concurrence in the house mendments. Then a good natured, but stinging controversy came up between Senator Boyd and Senatot Strother in the bill to admit girls into the branch colleges, and Senator Boyd got in some happy hallelujah licks for the wor while he and Senator Strother disputed on the same side of the question.

Finally the Augusta can al became a fruitful subject of dispute on the resolution for investigating the obstruction of fishways. In this discussion President du Bignon took a friendly part on the side of the fish folks.

There was some parliamentary hair-splitting between Senator Hall and Senator Barriett on the house amendment to the senate amendment to the railroad tax bill. The amendment made money payable to tax receivers instead of the treasure payable to tax receivers instead of the treasurer. The rules of the house and senate provide that a bill originating in one house, passed by it and passed by the other, cannot be again amended in the body where it originated, except as to the amendments put on by the second house. The house extended the principles of a senate amendment to two other sections of the bill in order to carry out its object.

Senator Bartlett raised the point of order that this Senator Bartlett raised the point of order that this was an amendment to the bill itself, and could not be put on by the body originating it. Senator Hall held that it was in effect an amendment to the senate amendment, because it only carried out its object. Speaker Clay had taken that view, and President dubignon said that in deference to the speaker he would sustain his ruling, whatever doubts he might have on the question himself.

Girl's Admitted to the Branch Colleges.

Senator Boyd's bill to admit white female students to the university and branch colleges came up, with the Wooten amendment, which struck out the word university wherever it occurred and left the branch colleges open to the girls.

There was no opposition to the bill in that mild form, but it led to some sharp sparring between Senators Boyd and Strother.

Senator Boyd conceded after the Wooten amendment that there was nothing in the issue but the admission of white female students into the branch colleges, two of which now admit them while two do not. Girl's Admitted to the Branch Colleges.

He had the secre'ary read an extract from the Forum on the subject of female education.

"I am not insisting upon the admission of females into the state university," said he. "If my bill is passed I am authorized to say, coming by a senator from the chancellor, that it will not increase the expense one doilar.

A Champion of the Old South. A Champlon of the Old South.

"I do not favor all the isms that come down from the north. I am not so much in favor of the new south. I stand upon the traditions of the old south. Whatever of advancement and progress you are making is due largely to the old south. The present material and political prosperily takes its growth from the old south. But there are some things in the north we may profitable learn.

there are some things in the senator from the twenty-ably learn.

"I take issue with the senator from the twenty-ninth in regard to the capacity of the daughters of the land. I take the broad scriptural ground that when God created man he created hum in his own image and he created them male and female—and what's the difference? Now there is a vast difference to the senator from the twenty-inith. image and he created them male and female—and what's the difference Now there is a vast difference according to the senator from the twenty-ninth. The only difference between the two sexes consists in their physical power and conformation. In point of mental and spiritual power they are equal, and I stand upon this floor to maintain that doctrine, either upon scriptural or philosophical grounds, according as the senator may see proper.

"I am surprised at the senator from the twenty-ninth, representing the old connty of Wilkes, the home of one of the greatest statesmen Georgia ever produced, to announce that there is such a disparity between male and female capability. I am glad that one of his constituents has joined issue with him. This lady will wield a mighty power, and if he does not make terms with her and her friends against the next senatorial race his seat will be vacant.

"I am glad to see from his explanation in his privileged remarks that the senator is actually on the stool of repentance in regand to what he said, and if his convictions are not deep enough I hope, by the grace of God, to be enabled to convert him today."

He said that Senator Strother had imbibed the old Grecian mythology and had become imbued with the theory of evolution and the survival of the fittest.

"I don't wonder that the daughters of with the theory of evolution and the survival of the fittest.

"I don't wonder that the daughters of the land have been kept back so long with such logislation. Laying them on this procrustean bed of heathen mythology, they will always be in the background. Let them come to the front, fellow senators, Where did you receive the inspiration which prompted you to higher motive? Let us bring all the columns along and not leave the females in the rear, and let all join in the prosperity which God in his providence has allotted to us in these last ends of the earth.

"Educate them and they will get positions of profit and honor. The authority I have quoted says all those graduates have gone out and taken enviable positions. Are you afraid these girls wall compete with you and your sons? If they can, give them a chambe. And if they can win the first place I am in favor of their doing so every time, because of their physical conformation they are unable to do work that men can.

"If the senator from the twenty-ninth has been converted by the letter from his constituents and by what I have had read I hope he will get up and give us his experience and help us pass the bill."

Senator Strother Comes Back. Senator Strother, who had taken this drub bing good naturedly, now rose to administer one in Senator Strother, who had taken this drub bing good naturedly, now rose to administer one in return:

"I said to the senator from the thix'y-second 'If you will agree to this amendment striking out the university we will pass your bill.' That was before I had anything to say on the subject. He said he would not accept the amendment, that he proposed to throw wide open all the avenues of education, I said to him, 'I think I know the temper of the senate, and if you don't agree to that your bill will be defeated,' and it was. So it seems this morning that he was the only obstacle in the way of the passage of this bill. And now he would have you believe that I stood there, the only obstacle, when behind me like a mountain stood my colleagues, and when they came down on that bill like an avalanche they swept it from the clerk's desk.

"And now I am the only target of the gontleman. Even the senator from the ninth, who proposed the amendment, has escaped. I have been singled out for the sharp points of his barbed arrows. I stand where I stood the other day. I said then that the female mind was formed more for the fine arts and light literature than the abstract selences."
"I would like to ask the senator if his opinion on that subject has not undergone a change since his reception of that letter from the distinguished lady in Washington," said Senator Bartlett.
"I said I was unwilling to piace upon them a burden they did not want," replied Mr. Strother; "but I am here, without fear of my constituents—without the fear of contradiction by history—to reliterate that, while they understand these things, they do not like them. That is why I do not vote for the admission of girls luto the state university of Georgia.

"But the senator charges me with preaching evolution. I did not support the doctrines of

"But the senator charges me with preaching evolution. I did not support the doctrines of Huxley and Darwin. If evolution is anything, it is nothing but a hypothesis to explain what nature put here. I have served my country in the camp and on the field, and I served my country ten years in the school room."

"I will ask the gentleman if he has ever been in the penitentiary," said Senator Lyle.
"Nover, but once, and that was in Virginia durying the war," replied Senator Strobler. "I have been of more service to my country in the school room than anywhere else. I stand committed to education in all its braffiches, but when it comes to rushing young ladies into the University of Georgia, I call a halt."

Senator Wooten.

roshing young ladies into the University of Georgia, I call a halt."

Senator Wooten.

Senator Wooten said he understood that Senator Boyd accepted the amendment and the bill now came in a shape to meet the views of the senate, which were to admit white iemaie students into the branch college.

"I think that is proper," said he. "Two of these colleges do admit them aircaly, When it comes to the admission of females to the State university, I am not prepared to say that I agree to it. That is an idea that seems to flourish most on nothern soil. But as to the branch colleges they are of the nature of local high schools and it is entirely proper to admit female students there. In conclusion I want to say I do not know that our system and institutions for the education and advancement of femals are the best that could be devised, but I do know that they have produced as grand a type of women as ever graced God's footstool."

The senate broke through the rules to applaud this sentiment.

Senator Bradwell for Coeducation of the Sexes all the way through. "Georgia," he said, "has failten behind in coeducation of the Sexes all the way through. "Georgia," he said, "has failten behind in coeducation. Almost all the states have adopted it. The senator says he don't like logarithms. I can show him numbers of girls who will throw logarithms at him until his head is dizzy. Does he not know that in the branch colleges they will be taught logarithms? The very word here that all men strive for is taken from the name of a woman. I think there may be some particular faculties of the mind in which they differ from men."

"In mathematics as applied the uses of every-day life," said Senator Bradwell.

"How about abstract mathematics:"
"In abstract mathematics they are sound. In applied mathematics they are not, simply became they have not had the use for it."

At the conclusion of Senator Bradwell's remarks Senator Johnson called for the previous question, and the bill passes by a vote of 29 to 3, Senators Henderson, N. O. Johnson and Ray voling no. The bill was immediately, transmitted A Sensation in a Fish Trap.

Senator Strother's resolution authorizing the governor to appoint a commission to investigate the obstructions to the passage of fish in the Savannah river at Augusta caused something of a sensation. The resolution also provided that if the obstructions were unwarranted by law the governor should ings to have them removed.

The charter of the Augusta Canal company requires it to keep fish ways, and Senator Strother's object was to see if those fishways were obstructed, and if not whether they were ample in width.

Senator Gibson bitterly opposed the passage of the resolution. He said the object of it was to stop factories that used $0,000 bales of cetton and transhed a livelihood to 20,000 people. He said these factories had done more than any others to beip the alliance in the solution of the cotton bagging problem. He moved to indefinitely postpone consideration of the resolution of the resolution, and asked Senator Strother if the effect was not to investigate the legality of the obstructions and to consider the feasibility of putting good fishways in the factories and that its object at the featories and that its object to the resolution at the factories and that its object.

Senator Gibson insisted that the resolution struck at the factories, and that its object was to remove the whole dam, which furnished the power for the factories. He said he could prove there was a good fishway in the dam and that fish had passed through it up the river.

in the dam and that fish had passed through it up the river.

Senator Strother said there were rocks and rubbish in the fishway and it was obstructed.

Dr. Cary, the fish commissioner, said it was perfectly practicable to putfishways in the dam without stopping a wheel. The corporation might be too stingy to spend $5,000 for proper fishways.

"Is it not true that the charter of this company requires them too keep an open fishway?" asked Senator duBignon.

"It is," said Senator Strother.

"And is it not the purpose and the purport of your resolution to see that you get a fishway?"

"It is," said Senator Strother, "and I stand here to represent fitteen counties. Ever since that dam was built in 1856, there have been few fish above the dam. The senator cannot show me where that dam was built in 1856, there have been few iish above the dam. The senator cannot show me where one shad has passed over."

"I state, in my place, that the fishway is in charge of one of the fish commissioners of South Carolina, and he told me it was the very best kind of fishway known to the world. It is the McDonald fishway, and is twelve feet wide. Here is his letter, which proves that shad have gone up there."

"I believe one shad did go up, according to the lestimony, and I don't know where in the name of God he came from," said Sonator Strother.

"Did not Dr. Cary say that the best way to propagate fish was to strip them and get their eggs and put them in the rivers, and we had to rely on that plan?" asked Senator Gisson.

"Yes, and he said t. ere ought to be more fishways there, and that it was done all over the United States, and was perfectly practicable.

"Toe trouble is not with the kind of fishway, but with the width of it. The water is so confined that the fish exercisity, the shade on 'see against the the fish, especially the shad, can't go against the current."

Mr. duBignon undertook to explain.
"Let me call the attention of the senator from the eighteenth (Gibson) to the scope of the resolution. The first provision is to find the extent of the obstruction, and ascertain if there is authority for the obstruction, and the second is to find whether it is feasible to put in better fishways. This is the scope of the inquiry, and I would like to ask the senator what fair objection can be raised against it?
"In 1881 a law was passed requiring the governor to send a delegate there to examine the dam. The delegate recommended that the fishway now in use be pieced there.
"If this improved fishway is already there, what possible objection can you have to this resolution for an investigation as to whether it is obstructed."
Senator Gibson insisted that it was a stroke at the dam, and that the original resolution for which this for an investigation as to whether it is obstructed?"

Senator Gibson insisted that it was a stroke at the dam, and that the original resolution for which this was a substitute showed this very plainly.
"I sympathize with the senator from the eighteenth in his efforts to protect the interests he represents," said Senator duBignon. "This is an important interest and one which has given an impulse of progress to the entire state, and I would be the last one to vote for extreme or radical legislation which would affect that interest; but these resolutions are conservative in their nature. They seek to secure to the citizens of a large portion of the state their rights as recognized by the charter which gives life to this company. The question is, have you an ample fishway there? If you have, that's the end of it. The inquiry stops there. If you have not an ample fishway, is one feasible? What could be more conservative? What could be more just? Are they not entitled to it? That is the whole question."

The resolution was adopted by an overwhelming vote.

Some Wildowt Resolutions Immediately after adjournment two important resolutions were introduced by Senator Lyle and read by the secretary.

One strikes a terrible blow at an artist:
"Resolved, That the artist who placed a painting in the cloakroom of the senate, purporting to be a likeness of our honorable president, be required to remove the same at once, as too much time is consumed by the members in their endeavors to figure out whose portrait it is."
The other reaches after the Hon, Primus Bale Jones:

charged with putting cockieburrs in his first bale of cotton; and,
Whereas, He has recently come from the penitentiary; therefore, be it
Resolved, By the senate, the house concurring, that a committee of two from the senate and thret from the house be appointed to investigate the truth of said charge, and to inquire whether there has not been an escape from the penitentiary at a recent date.

Be it further resolved, That if said charge is found true the said Primus Jones be required to take Turkish baths once a day for thirty days to purify his conscience.

MISCELLANEOUS

Lamp-chimney sellers and lamp-chimney users have a common interest, if they only know it, in chimneys that do not break.

Macbeth & Co., Pittsburgh, makers of "pearl-top" chimneys, pay the dealers to give a new one for every one that breaks in use. Of course their chimneys do not break.

Are they costly? They cost three times as much as brittle chimneys to make; of course they cost more at wholesale; usually they are sold for the same at retail. What inducement is there, then for the dealer to put an end to his trade by introducing them?

Every merchant has to face that question whenever he buys good things instead of good-looking ones.

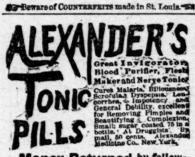

Macbeth & Co. send a primer on tough glass chimneys.

ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 4, 1889.

The Joint Rate Bill.

The joint rate bili, passed yesterday by the house, practically consolidates every railroad in Georgia, and puts them absolutely under the control of the railroad commission. Under the provisions of the bill the railroad commission is empowered with authority to establish the joint railroad rates between any two points on independent lines. For instance: Under the law as it now exists the commission can only regulate rates, between points on different lines, by fixing rates on each line, independent of the other. A through shipment from Marietta to Griffin is governed by the independent rates between Marletta and Atlanta, over the Western and Atlantic, and between Atlanta and Griffin over the Central. The rate on the same shipment to any point on the Georgia Midland would still further depend on the local rate of the latter road. Under the bill, as passed by the house vesterday, the same shipment can be regulated by a through rate from starting and stopping points, and such rates will be established by the commission.

The bill was introduced by Dr. Felton. after conference with Major Wallace and the other commissioners, who believe that such a measure is all that is necessary to clothe the commission with complete control over the railroads, and passed the house with but five dissenting votes.

It is not such legislation as this that i dangerous to the industrial development of our state. There can be no danger in a carefully regulated control of rates, by which the public is protected against unjust discrimination, while the railroads are not wrecked or plundered, or railroad securities unsettled. Such legislation as this, when wisely applied to rates affecting the public, which have no right to interfere with the internal management of railroad property, is consistent with the policy of the state and of sound government, and will result In good to the state's commerce without doing injustice to the railroads. Rates directly effect the whole people; the dollars and cents invested in railroad property do not, any more than the investments represented in any other character of business.

Just here note the difference in character between such legislation as this and that sought to be enacted by the Olive bill. One applies to the fixture of reasonable rates for the public and the other strikes a blow at every dollar invested in the railroad development of the state, by threatening established securities and scaring off new invest-

But it is pleasing to observe that the Olive bill is on its last legs, and what little there is left of it gets another black eve by the bill passed yesterday. Several prominent gentlemen of the house, heretofore considered as favoring some legislation on the Olive bill line, have already expressed day's work of the house, and will oppose the Olive bill in any of its features.

The old wreck is indeed going to pieces on the rocks!

To the State's Interest.

The resolutions providing for the appointment of a committee of conference with the lessees of the State road was not passed a day too soon. Indeed, for the interest of the state and an enlightened view and proper adjustment of the matter, it would have been better had this conference been provided for earlier in the session.

That this is a grave question involving the state's interest in the road, and for that matter the educational and other interests of the state dependent upon the rental of the road for support, does not admit of a particle of doubt.

Whether we like it, or don't like it, the question is upon us, and should be met. Let the committee, therefore, be appointed, and go promptly and energetically to work to elicit all the facts, and endeavor, if possible, to point out a way whereby the matter may be honorably and speedily adjusted. The people who are making this claim have done much to commend them to the fair consideration of Georgians-they have carried out both in letter and spirit the contract with the state in the most perfect good faith, and by the improvement of the property and the large volume of business they have thrown over the road, have made it possible to rent the property for a handsome price, while without this aid the road could not begin to earn the amount provided under the proposed new lease act.

Good faith, therefore, upon the part of the state, as well as the future of the property, demand that the matter should amicably and honorably adjusted, and it is to the committee of conference that the general assembly and the people will naturally look for a way out of the difficulty.

Courtship in Recent Fiction.

In the novels of the past generation lovers were described as models of devotion, gentleness and courtesy when they were in the presence of heir sweethearts.

We see nothing of this in the fiction of today, in our realistic stories, and passionate society novels. The typical lover is an athletic young man, whose impudence and brutality interest and fascinate the young ladies until they are reduced to a state of whimpering helplessness. A recent novel. written of course by a young woman, has a lover in it whose main points are strength, length and a coal black beard. He accidentally travels with a girl to whom he ha been introduced, but who has never seen him but once. On the trip the two talk about the scenery and the weather, but the tall man with the big black beard suddenly goes into a fit of delirium tremens over his ompanion's beauty, and without any warn ing gives her a tremendous hug and skips Later the man with the beard behaves like a hero at a fire and calls to see his fellow traveler. The young lady, who is a society belle, conducts herself manner that her visitor feels that it is his duty to hug her again, with effusion, as the French say. The wedding follows.

If our young people read much of this sort of stuff they will have queer ideas of life, and when they are turned loose they will cut some very astonishing capers.

The Problem of Education.

Mr. W. H. H. Murray, of Boston, once s preacher, and now a Bohemian, has been called many rough names, but nobody has ever called him a fool.

The other day Mr. Murray fectured in Boston on "The Problem of Education," and some of his views deserve to be considered by every thoughtful citizen.

Our present system of education, the lecturer thinks, falls short of what it should be. It is a great mistake to suppose that wisdom is to be found between the covers of a book and absorbed by the reader. It is not true education to stuff a child's mind with the contents of text books. Too much of what is taught in our schools educates the pupil away from a useful life. The child is led to believe that useful lines of employment are beneath him, and that it is more genteel to be idle than to be a toiler. Such a system of education is a mistaken system. It is not peculiar to the public schools alone; it runs through our entire educational system. What is needed is an education that will send every pupil into the world prepared and determined to do something useful.

Undoubtedly Mr. Murray is on the right line, and the popularity of our industrial schools shows that the people are with him. In this practical age education is judged by its results. The system yielding a product of well equipped, industrious and successful men is the best.

The Record of Senator Ingalls. A patriotic Kansan has come to the front with a few reasons for the retirement of Senator Ingalls.

The points made against the senator are these: He has had three terms in the senate, and has done nothing for his country. His bitter partisanship is unstatesmanlike. He is narrow-minded. He has remained at a standstill, allowing his state to outgrow Altogether, this is a very tame way of putting it. Ingalls is dominated by his malignant passions. His voice is always for war. His mission is to keep the north and south "dissevered, discordant, belligerent." He is an agnostic, and his moral in fluence is wholly bad. When he cannot hite he snaps and snarls. He is an Ingersoll, without Ingersoll's charity. He is a Thaddeus Stevens, without his courage.

It is a hopeful sign of the times to see the Kansans freely discussing this man and his methods. His constituents have had enough of him, and they will not rest until they send him back to private life and obscurity. No state in the union will long follow the leadership of a godless demagogue, whose intellectual assets consist of nothing but gall and bitterness.

The Bill to Pay the Commissioners Appointed Under the Candler Resolution of 1887 Passes the House.

The special order yesterday-and one of the most important bills of the present session—was a bill by Dr. Felton, the prime object of which is to give the railroad commission authority to fix "joint

THE COMMISSION FAVORED IT.

The bill was drawn up by commissioner Campbell Wallace, and his associate commissioners as well had expressed themselve unreservedly in favor of the proposed change.

Just after the bill was read yesterday, these letters from the commissioners were read by the clerk.

MR. GORDON, OF CHATHAM,

spoke in opposition to the bill.

Mr. Gordon said: "When this bill was taken up by unanimous consent he asked that it be made a special order, because, although a raitroad bill, it had been sent to the judiciary committee instead of the railroad committee, and because, as well as he could understand it from simply hearing it read, it seemed to him to revolutionize existing laws as to the regulation of railroads by the railroad commission.

His first impressions had been confirmed upon an examination of the printed bill. This bill authorizes the railroad commissioners of this state to make joint rates for connecting roads, although not under one control or management.

This is the assures of the printed commented to one control or management.

This is the reverse of the principles enunciated by the railroad commission in their report of July, 1889, and is beyond any grant of power by the United States to the interstate commission.

By request of Mr. Gordou, the clerk read from the 17th report of the railroad commission, page 7, as 17th report of the tailroad commission, page 7, as follows:

"One of the most important rules governing the transportation of freight, adopted on the organization of the commission, is known as rule 1, and is as follows: "All connecting railroads which are under the management and control by lease, ownership or otherwise of one and the same company, shall, for the purposes of transportation in applying the standard tariff, be considered as constituting but one and the same road, and the rates shall be computed as upon parts of one and the same road, unless otherwise specified."

"One of the arguments used in favor of such combinations is, that the business can be conducted more efficiently and economically under one management. If this be true it follows that freight can be transported at lower rates, and, unless the charges were below what is just and reasonable when the roads were operated separately, there ought to be a corresponding reduction is an rates when the companies are combined under one management."

Mr. Gordon said, here in July in argument of the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge company as to the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge company as to the Kentucky and Indiana Bridge company as to the Control of the

Take for illustration, shipments of one hundred pounds of first class freight from Jasper, on the Marietra and North Georgia railroad, to Cement, on the Western and Athantic, a haul of fitty miles over the first and forty miles over the second road—a total haul of ninety miles. According to the local tariff (made by the railroad commissioners), the rates would be on the M, and N Ga, railroad.........27

Total. 65 cents per 100 lbs.

If joint rates are made over the two roads on the continuous mileage basis allowed the Marietta and Morth Georgia road, the total charge for 90 miles would be 53 cents per 100 lbs., which allows to the Western and Atlantic railroad only 15 cents instead of 27.

would be 53 cents per 100 lbs., which allows to the Western and Atlantic railroad only 15 cents instead of 27.

If the 100 lbs. of freight went from Cement to Jasper on the continuous mileage basis allowed the Western and Atlantic railroad, the total charge would be only 42, which allows to the Marietta and North Georgia only 15 cents. Instead of 33. Then in one case the Western and Atlantic would have to carry the same freight if it started from Jasper and went to Cement via Marietta 12 cents per hundred pounds cheaper than if its started from Marietta and went to Cement, and the Marietta and North Georgia railroad would carry the same freight if it sarted from Cement and went to Jasper via Marietta 18 cents per hundred pounds cheaper than if the same freight started from Marietta and went to Jasper.

In other words, this bill means lower rates for connecting roads than these now in existence. This loss of revenue may perhaps be endured by the long roads with sources of income from interstate business beyond the reach of the Georgia commission, but how can short roads, dependent entirely upon local rates, live? The commission now allows them about one-third higher rates than the long roads, and yet it is notorious that none of them pay dividends, most of them barely earn operating expenses; some of them don't pay expenses. Reduction of rates to them means run.

The hue and cry is against comosilication, and here is a bill to enable the railroad commission to force the consolidation of roads, without their consent, against the interest of their stockholders, and by an unequal partnership enfeeble the weaker road until it has no alternative but to become the prey of the stronger road.

But it will be claimed that the same apprehensions of ruin to railroads were stated in the constitutional convention, and vertailroad have increased prosperity of the country courributed the capital and credit with which to build them, and because bonsolidation in ownership produced lower rates by economy in management, but above If the 100 lbs. of freight went from Cement to Jas pired. They will not live always. Their successors might not be equally considerate.

Complaint is continually made that Georgia railroads are owned in Wail street. It is the result of the character and temper of the legislation of this state. The actitation in pastytears has exterminated 5,000 native Georgian holders of Georgia railroad stocks. This bill will decimate the ranks of those who remain.

The Georgia railroad commission already has power to regulate all local rates; is it wise to give them an additional power not held by any interstate or state commission in this country?

MR. GLENN, OF WHITFIELD, followed in support of the measure.

"The object of this bill," said he, "is not to make any law or rule for the railroads of this state, but to give to the railroad commission the power in cer-give to the railroad commission the power in cer-give to the railroad commission the power in cer-tain cases to deal with rates over more than one line—that is; to fix 'joint rates.'

"The railroads of this state are very largely con-solidated. I use the term 'consolidation' to apply to the connecting of a series of railroads—'combina-tion' to apply to the bringing together under one manage-ment of a number of parallel or competing roads. Practically in Georgia, atthough consolida-tion and combination have both taken, place, the roads. Practically in Georgia, although consolida-tion and combination have both taken place, the railroads still preserve their identity and charge lo-cal rates over a number of roads controlled and operated by the same management. Now, as this has taken place, deal with them as such. As they have practically made themselves one line, let us deal with them as one line."

"Is not this an innovation," interrupted Mr. Gorone line, let us deal with them as one line."

"Is not this an innovation," intercupted Mr. Gordon, of Chatham.
"All progres is innovation. The railroad was one: the commission another, and we must deal with these things as they arise. How are we to legislate for railroad companies? They have two relations—one a private and the other a public one. With reference to the first, their internal affairs, we have no interest. It matters very little who controls the railroads, if, in their public relations, their rates are controlled and discrimination prevented. This is the field for practical legislation. Over this subject it is the duty of the legislature to act, beyond it all is immaterial.
This power has been given to the English commissions. Our commission will pass upon each special case as it arises, and, judging the future by two past, will do no harm to the railroads. The effect of this bill can work no harm. It will be administered as they have their other powers, in a conservative manner, and I have no question will be equally to the benefit of the milroads and the people. The policy of this bill is what I believe to the to correct one. Control railroads," MR. HART, OF GREENE,

This report of the most important rules governing.

"One of the most important rules governing the transportation of freight, adopted on the organization of the sum of the management and the same company, shall, for the purposes of transportation in applying the standard tariff, be considered as constituting but one and the same road, and the rates shall be computed as a price of the company shall, for the purposes of transportation in applying the standard tariff, be considered as constituting but one and the same road, and the rates shall be computed as lower rates, and, unless the combinations is, that the business can be conducted more efficiently and economically under one management. If this be true it follows that freight can be transported at lower rates, and, unless the charges were below what is just and reason the ratificad commissioners; that one control produces economy in management and hence entities the public to lower rates and century that the company is the public to lower rates and entitle rations to management in the public to lower rates and entitle rations to management in the public to lower rates and entitle rations the ratificad commissioners; that one control produces economy in management and hence entitles the public to lower rates and entitle rations that the commission is the rations of the rations o

Legislative Notes.

The resolution to pay the commissioners ap

The resolution to pay the commissioners appointed under the Candler resolution came up yesterday. The substitute bill reported back favorably by the appropriation committee gave the commissioners $1,250. the clerk $750, and the surveyor $1,500. An amendment was offered by Mr. Smith, of Gwinnest, reducing the pay of the commissioners to $1,000, but this was lost and the resolution was then passed as it came from the committee.

Mr. Fonte's bill, calling for a constitutional amendment to abolish the distinction between grand and petit jurors, was reconsidered yesterday in the house. The bill was then tabled. The bill by Mr. Harrell, of Decatur, providing for a sale of the Indian Springs reservation in Butts county, the old capitol and penitentiary property in Milledgeville, and the old capitol in Atlanta, all property belonging to the state, came up for discussion in committee of the whole. After some debate the matter was again postponed, the committee asking leave to sit again.

A peculiar resolution was introduced vesteday by Mr. Hand, of Mitchell. The peamble recites that George Singleton, a citizen of Mitchell county, had a valuable cow and a valuable mule, and the cow and the mule had glanders. Actuated by a proper public spirit and regard for his neighbors, Mr. Singleton killed the valuable cow and the valuable mule to prevent the spread of glanders. He now asks the state to reimburse him for the loss of his valuable cow and valuable mule.

Atocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, October 3.-The Wall street ney market settled down today with exasperthan during the past few days. The market was decidedly weak throughout, and on some stocks the bears jumped with both feet, aided principally by the fear of further gold shipments engendered by the fact that the reserve of the bank of England is down to 33.3 per cent, against 42.15 per cent las week, when the advance on the rate of discoun was made. There was no further advance made to have gone through, and the negotiation of a large loan to Brazil by the Rothschilds makes it almost certain that more gold will be needed to fill

The pressure was severe against cotton oil, which has been so firmly held through the weakness of other trusts. It gave way steadily and finally brought sugaralong with it. Chicago people were very prominent in selling out this stock and they also sold St. Paul liberally on decrease in earnings for the fourth week of September, although the fac for the fourth week of September, although the fact that it contained one day less than last year was well known. Manitoba and Burlington were noted exceptions to the rest of the list, being strong all the way out, although the former had a severe set back in the afternoon. As the day were along the pressure extended to the entire active list, and even such specialties as Pullman were affected, and declined could be a contained to the entire active list, and even such specialties as Pullman were affected, and declined cialties as Pullman were affected, and declined without a reaction of any importance.

The marget closed active and weak at the lowest prices of the day. Activity was greater than it has been seen since last Friday. Almost everything on the list is lower, and cotton oil lost 3% per cent, Manhattan 2½, sugar 1½. Atchison 1½ St. Paul, Reading and Pullmen 1½ each, Missouri Pacific 1½, Lakawanna, New England and Northern Pacific preferred 1 each, and others fractional

NEW YORK, October 3. — [Special.] — Henry Clews &Co's circular on the cotton market today anys: Liverpool seems to be in a state of coquetry. One day it sends over news especially prepared for the entertainment of the built element, and the next entertainment of the buil element, and the next the bears receive equal encouragement. The latter element enjoyed this blessing today, as options over there showed very little strength, October showing a decline of 1 point while the other months record-ed a decline of 2 points with sales of 10,000 bales; middling 63-16d. Our marget at the opening was quiet and steady at about yesterday's prices, but after the first call became buoyant on covering of shorts by the local operators, together with some small buying by outsiders, during which all the opsmall buying by outsiders, during which all the op-tions advanced 2 points with the exception of Oc-tober, which gained 3 points. The market ruled steady at the advance for a time, but as no more buying orders appeared, and the demand from the shorts had been supplied, the market relapsed into a dull and listless state, and prices sagged off under their weight, continuing up to the close, which was quiet and barely steady with the final figures the lowest for the day, ranging from 2@3 points below yesterday's closing prices. Although there has been a gradual decline in the price of spot cotton in all the southern markets, it has had no appreciable ef-fect upon the price of October option, but this should come in a few days. The market here for spot cotton ruled dull and steady. Although the price of middling was marked down to 10% overterday few buyers appeared today, and only 236 bales changed hands. Offers for next week's shipment of middling were received from the south, deliverable at Fall River, at 10c. The receipts at the ports today aggregated 35,986 bales, against 29,759 bales last year. So far this week the receipts have amounted to 197,849 bales, against 149,329 bales for the corresponding period last year. The southern markets show further weakness; Galveston 1-16c and Wilmington 1/2c lower.

JNO. S. ERNEST.

NEW ORLEANS, October 3-[Special] —Glenny & Violett. in their cotton circular today, say: While Liverpool spot sales were 10,000 bales at unchanged prices, futures declined 1-32d, the effect being felt both in New York and here, and a decline in this market of 7 points in October and 4@5 on the other months. An apprehension that spots would be lowered perhaps an eighth caused weakness in the current months. The strongest influence, however, in depressing the market was the underselling by interior sellers of f. o. b. cotton here of the local spot market, and, while the sales were large, 9,000 bales, they were made at concessions which caused a reduction of middling to 10c. Under such circumstances all other influences are ignored for the moment, and when cotton is pressed for sale, whether on the spot or for future shipment, buyers hold aloof and declines are the natural consequence While many believe as we do, that the crop has been severely damaged during September it is a condition that will not be officially known until the next bureau report is issued on the 10th instant, and in the event that our anticipations as to the loss in condition to be reported by it are correct, foreign and domestic spinners may come to the conclusion that a crop of 7,250,000 may be a maximum instead of a minimum estimate. F. o. b. on a basis of middling is worth here about 10%@10 15-16c but offerings are not as free as they were yesterday.

Spots here are easy: sales 9,900 bales; middling 10c.

There were no new features of any consequence developed, and the influences on the market were mainly of a local character. Through the Building Colonel Harde-man Thought He Had a Nightmare. Three Indians from the Wild West show

Three Indians from the Wald Week show visited the capitol yesterday, and though they were on a peaceful mission bent, excitement and terror followed closely on their trail.

From the moment that the red men appeared at the Hunter street entrance until they departed, the big building was given over to them and they did what pleased them best without the slightest interference from surveix.

what pleased them best without the singletes inter-ference from anyone.

Earn, the governor's boy, was seated on the top steps of the entrance on the Hunter street side when he glanced down and saw the strange looking head of big Chief Charley Ross appear around the corner of the steps. He watched the two other Indians steal stealtistly after their leader, and then with A yell. He Flend.

As the Indians entered the building Sam was leaving it by the Mitchell street door.

Once inside the Indians turned to the left and naited first at the state treasurer's door. Colonel Hardeman has been suffering greatly from a toothache lately, and he was resting on his sofa. While the Indians were still admiring his manly form the eyes of the sleeper opened. He watched them as they noiselessly passed from in front of his door. Then he muttered something about another nightmare caused by that blank tooth, and composed himself to sleep again.

From that point the course of the Indians was comparatively without incident until they reached the arricultural department. Their moceasined feet made no noise on the marble floors and like shadows they drilled into the room where Mr. Walter DeWolf was looking up autholities on the cotton worm. The Indians next looked into the secretary of state's department, and were as tonished by Colonel Barnett's triple glasses. As they glaned across the hall to Judge Hook's room, one of the Indians remarket. "Big chief see heap—got plenty eyes."

Judge Hook was never aware of the emotions he aroused in the breasts of the aborightes, as he was sitting with his back to the door, and did not see their black eyes fixed on him.

When the Indians reached the hall of the house doorkeeper, and shown over the upper floors.

They hesitated before trusting themselves to the spiral staircase leading to the dome. However, when they saw Mr. Smith ascend without evineing any fear, they followed, and the view from the platform elicited a gutterel "ha!" of satisfaction and the remark that the capitol was a heep big Leipee.

On the way home the Indians stopped in the governor's office. Judge Nisbet did not go home to dinner yesterday, he said he felt too weak. He decided that he is in need of a nerve tonic.

THE ESCAPED PRISONERS. Colonel Smith Must Pay the State Four Hundred Dollars.

Governor Gordon decided yesterday the amount that Colon I James M. Smith should pay the state for allowing criminals to escape while he the state for allowing criminals to escape while he was responsible for their safe keeping as lessee.

During this year seventeen convicts have cluded the vigilance of Colonel Smith's guards. Of these fourteen were recaptured and returned to the convict camp from which they fled.

Governor Gordon decided that of the four men who made good their escape the loss of only two could be stributed to the lack of proper care and diligence on the part of Mr. Smith, and he flued him $200 for each man. The escape of the other two was excusable, and no fine was imposed on their account.

A Popular Grocer on Peachtree Street Offer $25.00 For the Eest Loaf of Bread Made of His Flour.

His Flour.

Mr. J. J. Duffy, one of the most popular retail grocers in the country, comes to the front this morning and offers $25 for the best loaf of bread made out of Duffy's Superlative flour, and exhibited at the coming Pledmont exposition. This is quite a liberal offer, and will, no doubt stimulate a great many people in the culinary line. The flour that Mr. Duffy has been selling—Duffy's Superlative—is said by those who have tried it, to be the very best. This being the case, Mr. Duffy, in making this offer to the ladies of Atlanta, will doubtless secure a large patronage for his flour. It is to be remembered that this loaf of bread is to be made only from Duffy's Superlative, and no other flour will be brought into competition. Mr. Duffy is not afraid to compete with other flours, but feeling that his flour is the best of all, offers $25 as a prize to the one making the finest loaf of bread out of it.

It might be added in this connection that Mr. Duffy has been styled one of the leading retail grocers of Georgia. He keeps everything that is usually kept in a grocery store, and sells his goods at a reasonable profit. Being located on one of the finest streets in the city, Peachtree, he has a fine trade among the best class of people.

Now young ladies and old ladies, all who cook and all who eat, remember that Mr. Puffy offers the handsome sum of $25 for the best loaf of bread made out of Duffy's Superlative flour, exhibited at the exposition company. The company will appoint judges to decide the matter.

From Havana to Atlanta.

Mr. A. L. Cuesta, Atlanta cigar manufacturer, has received this week a large lot of the famous Manuel Garcia imported esgars which he is selling at the lowest price. Besides he has received a fine lôt of the new Cuban leaf tobacco which he is making in his choice brands of eigars, and which are compared by his many customers equal to the best imported Havanas. Among his best brands the Ponce DeLeon, a favorite ten cent cigar, is growing in popularity with every smoker who tries them, and the Latest Craze takes the lead of the five cent cigar in the market. On his commodious floor over Stoney, 'irregory & Co., he is making a large quantity of cigars, the demand of which is steadily increasing, owing to their well-deserved merits and the low price at which they are sold. Mr. Cuesta, who is an experienced cigar manufacturer, his created a name for his cigars, and the public patronize him liberally. THE VIRGINIANS.

THE OLD DOMINION SOCIETY PER FECTED.

el Thomas Carter Inducted Into the clety Adopted-What Was Done

The Atlanta Virginians met last night

Society Adopted—What Was Done.

The Atlanta Virginians met last night at the Markham and perfected an organization by installing Colonel Thomas Carter as prosident, and adopting a constitution and by-laws.

The meeting was largely attended.

Some of Atlanta's most prominent and influential citizens were present and attached their names to the laws governing the association.

Colonel Haden, the first vice-president of the society, called the meeting to order. Mr. Hamilton Dougias informed the chair that Colonel Carter had been notified of his election as president, had accepted and was present. A committee, casasisting of Mr. Douglas, Dr. T. S. Powell and Mr. George Scoville, was appointed to second the room applauded by his friends, and upon assuming the duties of his office, made a beautiful and pleasant address, in which he referred tenderly to the Old Dominion and her sons.

The constitution and by-laws were then presented by Mr. Douglas, chairman of the committee, and were adopted with a few changes only.

The Rev. Dr. J. William Jones, in response to an urgent request made at the previous meeting, addressed the society. Dr. Jones's talk was one of his happiest efforts. He began by paying a beautiful tribute to the old state, and then showed that her sons, scattered as they are over the union, were always found in the front ranks of their adopted hones. The doctor declared, too, that Virginians everywhere exerted a great influence for good. In educational work he said the old state lead them all. Then dealing in soild facis, Dr. Jones's showed that the universities and colleges of most of the southern states, many of the western and some of the eastern states were managed by Virginians, or gentlemen educated in Virginia. The educational system of his old home, and gespecially the system of his old home. He was fistened to with interest, and when he sat down was loudly applauded.

After the meeting was over President Carter called his executive committee together and with them discussed the work to be done.

DACEY AND MACEY.

The Two Men Are to Meet at DeGive's To Night.

Ed Dacey, who is to fight Tom Macey at the operahouse tonight a ten-round battle with two ounce gloves, arrived in the city last night. The puglist was delayed seven hours by a wreck on the Cincinnati Southern, and fearing he might be delayed even longer he sent several telegrams stating that he would be at the operahouse on time. Although Macey weigns torty pounds more than Dacey, he has his work cut out for him tonight. Dacey is a southern boy, having been born in Savannah. When sixteen years old he began sparring, and in his time he has fought some desperate battes.

and in his time he has fought some desperate battifes.

Skin gloves are Dacey's pets. He used them in his first oncounter, which after one hour and a half's hard fighting, resulted in a draw, though the referee expressed a leaning toward Dacey. His second battle was with the same Englishman, and Dacey knocked him out in the third round. Jim Barry was the next man to put on skin gloves with him, and the Savannah boy put him to sleep in the thirty-second round. He also fought Tom Howard, the St. Louis blacksmith, with two-ounce gloves. After the fourteenth round Howard's second announced that his man had been made ill by a sour orange and could *not continue in the ring. The referee remarked that a sour orange and Dacey together would make most men ill, and awarded Dacey the fight.

After tonight's encounter with Macey, Dacey says he is ready to meet any white manjin Georgia, barring nobody. He has also a well-lined pocket-book, the contents of which he is ready to risk on tonight's battle.

MR. RAMZA'S FUNERAL.

Born In Birmingham, Eng, Buried In Birmingham, Ala. The remains of Mr. Frank W. Ramza, the dead actor, were sent to Birmingham, Ala., for burial at 1:15 yesterday. It is a striking coincidence that this young man who had traveled all over the world, should be laid to rest in a city bearing the same name as his birthplace beyond the seas.

Born in the workshop of Europe and buried in one of the great manufacturing centers of the new world. The remains will be buried by the Benevolent Order of Elks today, with appropriate ceremonies. His comrade and life long friend, Mr. Arno, accompanied thei-body as chief mourner, and his grief for the loss of his friend was pitiful to behold.

He is Unanimously Elected a Member of the Artillery.

The rules of the Atlanta Artillery company were suspended last night and W. H. Harrison was unanimously elected a member.

The artillery company regard their rules with great strictness, and this is only the second or third time that they have been sufficiently eager to enroll a new member among their numbers to suspend the rules in his favor.

A more valuable acquisition could hardly have been made. Captain Tip Harrison received his rarly education at the national naval school at Annapolis, and, as a necessary part of his learning, he acquired a thorough knowledge of big guns.

His long and honorable service in the confederate infantr. during the war gave him a still more thorough knowledge of small arms.

Although he bore the reputation in the army of being thoroughly kind and thoughtul of his men, he yet had the name of being a strict disciplinarian. Captain Harrison was provoced for bravery during the war. He will probably not remain long as a private in the Artillery.

Mr. O. H. Bentley was also elected a member of the company under the suspension of the rules. Mr. Bentley has a splendid record as an artilleryman, which he won by hard fighting during the war.
